CONSTITUTION

ARTICLE I.—NAME.

SECTION 1. The name of this Society shall be THE CANADIAN SOCIETY OF NEW YORK.

ARTICLE II.—OBJECTS.

SECTION 1. The objects of the Society shall be to interpret Canadian Nationalism, to further good-will between English speaking peoples, to promote social intercourse among Canadians in New York, and to provide relief for Canadians in need of assistance.

ARTICLE III.—MEMBERS.

SECTION 1. The membership shall be divided into four classes: 1, honorary; 2, life; 3, resident; and 4, non-resident.

SECTION 2. Any male person of good moral character, a Canadian by birth or adoption, or the son of a native Canadian, is eligible for admission as a resident member.

SECTION 3. A person qualified for admission as a resident member, but who resides more than twenty-five miles beyond the limits of the City of New York, is eligible for admission as a non-resident member.

SECTION 4. Any person qualified for admission as a resident or non-resident member, who pays at one time the sum of at least $200, is eligible for admission as a life member.

SECTION 5. Honorary membership may be conferred upon a person by the unanimous vote of the Board of Directors at any meeting thereof.

SECTION 6. A non-resident member, who shall become a resident of the City of New York or within twenty-five miles of its limits, shall thereby become a resident member and pay the dues of a resident member.

SECTION 7. A resident member, who resides more than twenty-five miles beyond the limits of the City of New York, may become a non-resident member and pay the dues of a non-resident member.

SECTION 8. Honorary and non-resident members shall enjoy all the privileges of resident members, except that they shall not vote nor hold office, nor shall an honorary member have any interest in the property of the Society.

SECTION 9. The membership of a person in this Society shall terminate by his death, voluntary withdrawal or expulsion therefrom. The manner of such withdrawal or expulsion shall be determined by the By-Laws. Upon the death, withdrawal or expulsion of such person, his interest in the Society, and its property, shall at once cease, but he shall not be thereby released from the payment of dues or other liabilities, which he incurred before he ceased to be a member.

ARTICLE IV.—Officers.

Section 1. The officers of the Society shall consist of a President, four Vice-Presidents, a Secretary and a Treasurer, who shall be elected annually by the members of the Society, for the term of one year, and until their successors are elected, and whose powers and duties shall be such as are prescribed by its By-Laws.

Section 2. The Society shall have a Board of Directors, consisting of the officers of the Society and in addition nine members, who shall be elected in the manner and for the terms prescribed by the By-Laws, and such Board shall have the control and management of the property, funds and affairs of the Society, pursuant to law and in accordance with its Constitution and By-Laws.

ARTICLE V.—Dues.

Section 1. The annual dues of resident members shall be ten dollars, and of non-resident members five dollars, payable on the thirty-first day of March in each year.

BY-LAWS.

ARTICLE I.—Powers and Duties of Officers.

Section 1. The President of the Society, and in his absence, the senior Vice-President present, shall preside at the meetings of the Society, authorize the call for all meetings of the Society, and the Board of Directors; be ex-officio, a member of all standing committees, and exercise the usual functions of a presiding officer. The President shall, with the Secretary, sign all written contracts and obligations of the Society.

Section 2. The Secretary of the Society shall notify each member of the meetings of the Society and each member of the Board of Directors of each meeting of the Board; issue all other authorized notices to members; make and keep a true record of all meetings of the Society and Board of Directors, have the custody of its Constitution and By-Laws; and conduct its correspondence.

Section 3. The Treasurer shall receive all moneys, and disburse the same, under the direction of the Board of Directors: shall keep accurate accounts of all receipts and disbursements in books belonging to the Society, and make report thereof at each meeting of the Board of Directors; and at the expiration of his term of office, submit a final account, with vouchers which shall be audited by the Auditing Committee.

ARTICLE II.—Powers of Board of Directors.

Section 1. The Board of Directors shall appoint annually, from its own members, or the members at large, five Trustees, an Auditing Committee and an Entertainment Committee; but no standing committee shall exceed five members. The Chairman of each Committee so appointed shall be a member of the Board of Directors. The Board of Directors may also appoint such other committees as it shall deem expedient.

Section 2. The Board of Directors shall have power to suspend or expel any member of the Society, after a hearing, for conduct on his part, in its opinion, prejudicial to the interest or character of the Society, after two weeks' previous notice in writing, stating the time and place of hearing, has been served upon such member, either personally or by registered mail, with a copy of the charges against him.

Section 3. Five members of the Board of Directors present at any meeting thereof shall constitute a quorum.

Section 4. The Board of Directors shall hold its regular meetings on the second Monday of March, April and December of each year, at such time and place as the Board shall appoint.

Section 5. The Board of Directors shall have power to make purchases and contracts for the Society; but shall have no power, unless authorized, to render the Society or any member thereof liable for any debt beyond the amount of money, which shall, at the time of contracting such debt, be in the treasury and not needed for the discharge of prior debts or liabilities.

SECTION 6. The Society shall have the power to remove from office any or all of the members of the Board of Directors by vote of two-thirds of its entire membership at a Special meeting called for that purpose.

SECTION 7. The Board of Directors shall have power to fill any vacancy, which may occur in an office or on the Board by reason of death, resignation or otherwise, until the next annual election.

SECTION 8. A special meeting of the Board of Directors may be called at any time by the President, or, in his absence or disability, by the senior Vice-President able to act, whenever the President or such Vice-President shall deem it expedient, or be requested by three members of the Board of Directors in writing, setting forth the purpose of such meeting. At any special meeting no business other than that specified in the call shall be considered, except by unanimous consent of the entire Board.

SECTION 9. A Director who fails to attend three consecutive meetings, unless excused by the Board, shall thereby forfeit his membership on the Board.

ARTICLE III.—ADMISSION OF MEMBERS.

SECTION 1. Candidates for admission as members shall be proposed in writing to the Board of Directors by two members, who shall state the name of the person proposed, his place of birth, occupation, residence and their personal knowledge of his qualifications for membership.

SECTION 2. The Board of Directors shall make careful investigation of every candidate so proposed. Members shall be admitted to the Society on vote of the Board of Directors, and two black balls or negative votes shall exclude.

SECTION 3. Each member elected to membership shall, as a condition thereof, within thirty days after notice in writing has been sent to him by the Secretary, pay to the Secretary the amount of his annual dues. Any member elected within three months preceding the annual meeting shall be entitled to membership until the end of the fiscal year upon payment of one-half of the amount of the annual dues.

SECTION 4. When the dues of a member shall remain unpaid for the space of one month, the Secretary shall cause him to be notified that, unless the same be paid within ninety days thereafter, his membership shall cease; and in case such dues shall not be paid pursuant to such notice, he shall thereupon cease to be a member, unless for reasons satisfactory to the Board of Directors the default shall be excused.

ARTICLE IV.—MEETINGS.

SECTION 1. The annual meeting of the Society shall be held at eight o'clock in the evening of the fourth Monday of March in each year at such place as the Board of Directors shall appoint, for the election of officers and members of the Board of Directors, and for the consideration of such other business as may come before it.

SECTION 2. A special meeting of the Society may be called at any time by the President, or, in his absence or disability, by the senior Vice-President able to act, and whenever the President or such Vice-President shall be thereunto requested by ten members, in writing, setting forth the purpose of such meeting. At any special meeting no business other than that specified in the call shall be considered. At least five days' notice in writing shall be given to the members of all meetings of the Society.

SECTION 3. Ten members present at the annual meeting of the Society or any special meeting thereof shall constitute a quorum.

ARTICLE V.—ELECTIONS.

SECTION 1. At the annual meeting to be held on the fourth Monday of March in each year, a President, four Vice-Presidents, a Secretary, a Treasurer, and three members of the Board of Directors shall be elected and there shall also be elected such Directors as may be necessary to fill any vacancy on the Board occurring during the past year.

SECTION 2. At the annual meeting of the Society to be held in March, 1910, three members of the Board of Directors shall be elected for the term of one year, three for the term of two years and three for the term of three years; and at each annual meeting thereafter, three members of the Board of Directors shall be elected for the term of three years.

SECTION 3. The Board of Directors at its regular or any special meeting in December, shall appoint a Nominating Committee of five members, of which there shall not be more than two members of the Board of Directors. The Nominating Committee shall on or before the first day of February report to the Secretary the names of the candidates recommended by it for election to the offices and to the Board of Directors. The Secretary, on or before the fifteenth day of February, shall mail to each member the names of the candidates so recommended by the Nominating Committee.

SECTION 4. At the annual meeting any two members may nominate from the floor a candidate for office or for membership on the Board of Directors.

SECTION 5. The presiding officer shall appoint at the annual meeting two or more inspectors of election, who shall receive and canvass the ballots and certify the results to the Secretary.

SECTION 6. The polls shall be open one hour.

SECTION 7. A member in arrears for dues shall not be entitled to vote at any meeting of the Society.

ARTICLE VI.—Trust Fund.

Section 1. Donations, bequests and all sums received for life membership shall be held and invested by the Trustees, under the direction of the Board of Directors, as a Permanent Fund to be loaned at interest or invested in bonds, mortgages or public funds, and the income thereof shall be applied to the general purposes of the Society.

ARTICLE VII.—Resignations.

Section 1. Resignations from membership must be in writing and sent to the Secretary. If sent after the date when their dues become due, members so presenting them shall not be discharged from the payment of such dues for that year.

ARTICLE VIII.—Order of Business.

Section 1. At the annual meeting of the Society the order of business shall be:

Roll Call.
Reading of Minutes.
Reports of Officers.
Reports of Committees.
Unfinished Business.
New Business.
Election of Officers and Members of Board of Directors.

SECTION 2. At the regular meetings of the Board of Directors, the order of business shall be:

Roll Call.
Reading of Minutes.
Reports of Officers.
Unfinished Business.
Balloting for Members.
General Business.

SECTION 3. The rules and order of Cushing's Manual shall govern the meetings of the Society and its Board of Directors so far as they are applicable and not inconsistent with the Constitution and By-Laws.

ARTICLE IX.—AMENDMENTS TO THE CONSTITUTION AND BY-LAWS.

SECTION 1. To amend the Constitution and By-Laws an affirmative vote of two-thirds of the members present and voting at a general or special meeting shall be requisite.

SECTION 2. No amendment of the Constitution or By-Laws shall be voted upon unless a copy thereof shall have been furnished to the Secretary at least three weeks before the meeting at which action is to be taken thereon, and it shall be the duty of the Secretary to cause the same to be printed and distributed to the members with the notice of such meeting. An amendment to the amendment may be put without notice.

FOREWORD

FRED W. SHIBLEY

WHAT THE CANADIAN SOCIETY STANDS FOR IN NEW YORK CITY

The most outstanding service which a foreign born citizen of this country can perform for the land of his birth is to fulfill honorably every obligation social or political of his acquired citizenship.

There is no propaganda which Canada could put out in the United States equal to the known character and business integrity of the Canadians here resident. That portion of the people of the United States who have not an intimate knowledge of Canada and its inhabitants naturally measure their Northern neighbors with the yard-stick of the Canadians in this country with whom they are brought in contact. Recognizing this fact, the Canadian Society of New York through its public functions and the general character of its membership has endeavored to stand forth as a representative body of men of Canadian birth. It has assumed, therefore, a high responsibility and one it must live up to. Membership in the Canadian Society of New York accordingly is a position of honor and responsibility.

Having in mind this thought it is interesting to read over the names of the members in this year book and in the light of an established acquaintance and friendship consider what these men stand for in this great cosmopolitan metropolis.

First of all they stand for loyal and patriotic devotion to the Constitution of the United States. Born in an atmosphere of freedom, they understand and appreciate the great fundamental social principles set forth in that wonderful human document. They stand for obedience to law, for the advancement of the Arts and Sciences, believing without qualification that civilization can only progress and expand along educational lines. Born poor in greater part, they know that commerce may make a nation rich but an educated intelligence only can make it great and enduring. They believe firmly that what are termed "Anglo-Saxon" principles of social organization, express the highest development in the evolution of society and they have the courage to promote and expound these principles and in themselves they endeavor to be living witnesses of the working out of these principles.

Men after all are merely the creatures of inheritance and environment. When one beholds the citizens of a State and observes their natural ranking in world society, he has the best testimony as to the efficiency of the social and political codes of that State.

The Canadian Society believes that it is to the interest of world civilization that the several great free Commonwealths which compose the British Empire should hold together and co-ordinate their international activities. Therefore, the Society believes in the development of Canada within the Empire and in the promotion of the most cordial neighborly relations with the United States.

These high ideals of citizenship and international policy form the foundation on which the Canadian Society stands. Its other activities social and charitable tie into these ideals. What has been said is known to all of us, but it is well now and again to elaborate and re-assert the articles of our faith.

DR. ALEXANDER CROMBIE HUMPHREYS

Dr. Alexander Crombie Humphreys was born in Edinburgh, March 30, 1851, the son of Dr. Edward R. Humphreys, a classical scholar of distinction, and Margaret (McNutt) Humphreys, a Canadian. In 1859 his father came to America, establishing himself in Boston.

Alexander Humphreys, at the age of 14, received the promise of an appointment to the United States Naval Academy. He successfully passed the examinations for entrance but was denied admittance on account of his youth. At 17 he came to New York and was for some years with the Guaranty and Indemnity Company, forerunner of the present Guaranty Trust Company. In the course of this employment he was made treasurer of a small gas company at Bergen Point, New Jersey, where, on April 30, 1872, he married Eva, daughter of Dr. Emile Guillaudeu. He discovered that in order to manage successfully a gas company he must have a scientific and practical education and therefore he entered Stevens Institute of Technology at Hoboken as a part-time student, securing his engineering diploma in the usual four-year term with a general average of efficiency of over 90%, a performance commemorated by the Faculty of Stevens in a special resolution.

Having graduated from Stevens his progress as an engineer was steady. In 1885 he became associated with the United Gas Improvement Company, eventually taking over the complete operating management of plants of that great company scattered all over this country. In the course of this management he gained a vast experience, notably of the impracticability of standardizing—as some had insisted—the manufacture of gas.

In 1892 he formed in London the still existing firm of Humphreys and Glasgow, his partner being a fellow graduate of Stevens. Water-gas was introduced into Britain by the firm which soon branched out all over the world. Later the New York firm of Humphreys and Miller was formed, Mr. Miller being another Stevens man. These two became general consulting engineers, one of Mr. Humphreys' particular fields being that of expert witness in important cases before courts and commissions.

In his later years Alexander C. Humphreys was recognized as a leading authority on the economical production of gas in this country.

Recognition of his distinguished ability came to him in many ways, his honorary degrees including Pennsylvania (LL.D. 1903), Columbia (LL.D. 1903), Princeton (LL.D. 1905), Brown (LL.D. 1907), Rutgers (LL.D. 1909), and Renssalear Polytechnic (D. Eng. 1909).

Dr. Humphreys was a member of more than one hundred clubs, professional societies, artistic and charitable organizations. He was at one time or another president or vice-president of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers, the American Institute of Consulting Engineers, the American Gas Institute, the Society of Gas Lighting, the Engineers Club, the Lotos Club, Canadian Society of New York, the Saint Andrew's Society of New York, Robert Burns Society and many others.

Dr. Humphreys' outstanding characteristic was courage. Having taken up any activity he pursued it regardless of personal cost, to the end. When he reached a point of view by painstaking analysis, he was almost impossible to move.

In 1902 he was elected President of Stevens Institute of Technology in which position he remained until 1927, the year of his death.

An outstanding characteristic of Dr. Humphreys was his love of young men and his belief in allowing them to follow their initiative.

As President of the Canadian Society for two years during the exciting period of the world war, he rendered invaluable service. He was admired and loved by his fellow members and the Society has lost in him one of its most distinguished members and one of its best friends.

JOHN HAMILTON FULTON

Death has taken men from our membership since our last year book was issued whom it will be hard to replace. Among our irreparable losses was Mr. John Hamilton Fulton, who died suddenly at his country home, Braidlea Farm, Essex Co., New York, on September 26, 1927.

He was born at Cotes des Neiges, Montreal, Canada, on November 12, 1869. He was the son of Scottish parents, John and Janet (Brown) Fulton and is survived by his wife, Jean Montgomery Fulton and their two sons, John and Alexander.

He was educated in the public schools of his native city. He left school when he was fourteen years of age to work in the Merchants Bank of Canada. He left that position at the end of a year and went to Pensacola, Florida, where he was employed in the lumber business for a year. Then he returned home at his mother's request and began his career in the Canadian Bank of Commerce, in 1886.

There was nothing in his manner or conduct as we saw and knew him to suggest love of adventure or daring and yet a boy of fifteen years of age who would leave Montreal and go to Pensacola alone to make his way in life must have had some of both in him. His progress in the Canadian Bank of Commerce was rapid. He was lucky enough to detect a forgery which brought him the notice of his superiors and favored his promotion. He was made accountant of its New York branch in 1894 and manager of its New Orleans branch in 1898.

The New Orleans branch prospered under his management until it was checked by state legislation against foreign banks. Then Mr. Fulton became an American citizen and organized and managed American banks in Louisiana and Mississippi, which grew to become the most influential financial institutions in the south. He became a leader among bankers in the south, was president of the Louisiana Bankers Association and was considered an expert on financial legislation.

He was interested in other lines of business. He was a director of the Crucible Steel Co., of the Western Assurance Co. of Toronto, of the North America Assurance Co. of Toronto and other business organizations. He belonged to the Metropolitan and Bankers and Canadian Clubs of New York and to India House. He was a member and trustee of the Fifth Avenue Presbyterian Church and was a member and officer of St. Andrew's Society of the State of New York which he served as treasurer for several years.

He came to New York from the south in 1916 to take an executive position in the National City Bank. He became its senior vice-president and continued in that position until he accepted the presidency of the National Park Bank in 1922, in which he remained until his untimely death.

He became a member of The Canadian Society of

New York in 1917 and took an active part in its work. He was elected its president in 1922 and re-elected in 1923 and later was one of its trustees. During his terms in the presidency, he did much to encourage social intercourse between its members and to further its national aims. Nothing gave him more pleasure than to bring its officers, committees and others together as his guests to discuss its affairs and consider its policies. He was particularly interested in its benevolence and for many years was a liberal contributor towards its relief fund. He felt it was his duty to help deserving charities as in churches, hospitals, clinics and other humanitarian bodies and he would have favored larger expenditure and better organization to carry on the Society's relief work satisfactorily.

Like many of our folk, especially the older ones among us who left home young and fought their way to eminence and success in the warfare of life, he was modest and reticent and slow to form acquaintances even among Canadians. But when one knew and understood him and had his confidence he was a cheerful and delightful companion and showed deep attachment to his birthplace and people.

He was one of our outstanding men and had a national reputation as a conservative banker when he came to New York. The business of his bank grew and expanded under his direction and largely through his personal influence. He had attained and filled a high place in the larger business of the country. He had the respect of the community and the esteem of his associates and may be said to have realized the ambition of his business life when his health began to fail and interfered with his enjoyment of the result of his years of effort.

Had he done less and played more and left his cares behind when he sought rest and change he might not have been taken from us so soon. But it was not easy for him to do that. His sense of duty to his position was stronger than his consideration for himself and too often, he let unessential things deprive him of the mental rest and diversion his health required.

He had signs of high blood pressure for a few years and did a lot of things for it without getting lasting benefit. He rested oftener and for longer periods and sometimes felt much better but when he overtaxed himself in any way his symptoms came back. He knew their meaning and had in mind the probable result, if their cause were not removed, but he kept on doing and did not seem to modify the routine of his social life. He responded to the humor and joined in the laughter of a convivial group of friends as lightheartedly as if he were in his normal health.

When he left the city on what, unfortunately was his last visit to his farm, he appeared to be quite well, but an arduous day of exercise and local business brought on a severe attack of his trouble which ended in his death within a short time. His funeral service was conducted in Montreal by the pastor of the Fifth Avenue Presbyterian Church, assisted by the pastor of his country church and was attended by a delegation of his associates and friends from New York. His body was interred with his kin in Canada.
